Credit Cards: What you need to know Available in Chinese, English, Korean, Spanish and Vietnamese Most people use credit cards—but do they know the terms of the agreement they have with their card issuer? This brochure, updated to reflect the new federal credit card law, is designed to help readers understand the different types of cards available, sort through offers to choose the card that’s right for them, understand credit card terms and conditions, and avoid fees and penalty rates.
Families and Credit Cards Available in Chinese, English, Korean, Spanish and Vietnamese This educational brochure is designed for parents who are weighing the merits of giving their children credit cards. The topics covered include youth and credit cards, adding cardholders to your account, secondary cardholder policies, payment options for kids while they are traveling and helping young people understand the importance of good credit.

Note: The training guide and PowerPoint for these materials can be downloaded from the Consumer Action website at www.consumer-action.org. (Please select the training module on your right-hand side under the quick menu when you are at the website.)
